BUD AND BACKWOODS BRIDE OFF ON HONEYMOON TRIP

Known from his own through his years on his father's farm and her employment in the household of her husband's mother.

Preliminary to the wedding ceremony, informal but none the less beautiful and unique, the Scotch band with the escort of Highlanders in kilts, paraded through the streets to the Stillman camp. Lively air was played, mostly English, Scotch and French-Canadian.

Enthusiasm was at its height when the happy newweds appeared. Lena and "Bud" all smiles. There were kisses showered upon the bride from all sides, and lusty "heavenly love" calls from the lumberjacks and farmers, and "heavenly love" from the town officials and their wives.

HURL OLD SHOES.

Then came the old-fashioned riot and contest, and hurling of old shoes, and scramble by the girls for the bride's bouquet. In a final grand rush of goodwill and noise, "Bud" and his bride made their getaway, carrying with them the best wishes of the countryside which owed them its sight of the North Woods territory's greatest event.

Prominent in the group on the Stillman lawn was Mrs. Anne Ugarhart Stillman, mother of the groom, and central figure in the crockery bombardment of the ceremony. How angry was she at the photographers that she laid a barrage of dishes which kept the picture takers dodging the barrage. One of them was hit in the face and suite badly hurt.

Two of them were slapped by Lena's new mother-in-law.

The guests applauded the unique battle features of the wedding. The display of temper on the part of Mrs. Stillman was "a fine note of the whole ceremony." The wedding was picturesque in the last degree. Country folk, quaintly clad, rubbed elbows with the social elite of New York and black hat.

Takes $100 a Night to Keep the Modern Girl Happy

Atlantic City, July 27 (AP).—

The modern girl expects a vast amount of fun and amusement, so the situation is viewed by W. L. Barstow, vice-president of the National Surety Company, while it is once possible to have a good time for $5, and now the average youth in a position of trust is subject to strong temptation.

The two cars came together with a crash by breaking glass that was audible for blocks over the noise of traffic, and was accompanied by screams of woman and shouts of men.

A crowd immediately gathered, and traffic officers who had been on duty getting the injured out of the street were badly damaged, but both were able to proceed under their own power.

The injured were rushed to City Hospital in ambulances from Station 1 and 10.

drawing a card about her throat. Connor Herman quoted the youth as confessing.

"Then I carried her to the coast line and covered her up with boards. Yes, she was still breathing. Then I went back Monday and she was alive then, too," the youth was said to have admitted.

Billadeau then said that he did not return to the site until the following Sunday when he removed the dead body and took her mutilated body to a swamp at the north end of Highland Lake, where he deposited the bundle in some bushes and fled. He was observed, however, and arrested.

The youth has already served a reformatory sentence for an attempt at attack on a girl en route to school. He is still being held in the Lincoln County Jail, 13 miles from Winochet, authorities fearing violence from the innocent citizenry here.

The new revelations today only added to the smoldering indignation universal here.

GOLDEN WEDDING IN HOUSE OF HIS BIRTH 82 YEARS AGO

Poosett, July 27 (AP).—In the little brown house by the water where he was born 82 years ago, "Uncle Sam" Kendrick is observing his golden wedding anniversary today with his wife, whose black hair and united face belie her 80 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick, both of whom are exceptionally active, were married in Brockton 50 years ago. Last year, in anticipation of what "Uncle Sam" spoke of as their "next 25 years together," the old house was remodeled and refurbished.

The Governor also interviewed two others in connection with the case, these being brought to his office by his personal counsel, Attorney Joseph Wiggins, who has not left him during his entire investigation.

THUGS STEAL SAFE, CASH JUST AS POLICE ARRIVE

Worcester, July 27.—A five-foot steel cabinet safe, containing $7,500 in checks, $200 cash and valuable contents, was stolen early today from the Foxboro Motor Company showroom in Main street by a band of "thieves."

The escape with the safe in their hands was made by a group of five men who were seen to enter the store and to leave it with the safe and to flee in a car.

His visit to the prison followed a surprise trip to South Braintree, where, with the aid of two State police officers, he carefully inspected the murder scene and had measurements made of the distance over which witnesses were compelled to look to see the hidden men.

Sacco and Vanzetti, the former in the eleven day of his hunger strike and the latter on the fourth day of his renewed fast, were visited by Dr. Joseph H. Sympathizers plan to hold a protest meeting on Boston Common next Sunday afternoon even if a permit is not obtained for a parade and for use of the Parkman bandstand. The meeting will be held on the mall at one of the gathering points regularly used, under permit from the city, by various labor organizations.

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, one of the three members of the advisory board now deliberating on its investigation of the case, was in conference for three-quarters of an hour today with Governor Fuller.

The Governor also interviewed two others in connection with the case, these being brought to his office by his personal counsel, Attorney Joseph Wiggins, who has not left him during his entire investigation.

The first refused to give his name. He was with the Governor an hour and was flushed and excited when he left.

"I'm Not Lucky Lindy; It's Hard Work," Says Air Hero

Springfield, Va., July 27.—Lindy

"I'll tell you with this 'lucky' stuff," he said so, frankly, to ex-Governor James Harrison.

They were walking when Harrison picked up a horseshoe.

"How appropriate I should find a horseshoe while with 'Lucky Lindy' himself," the ex-Governor remarked. Lindy replied:

"I'm all fed up with this 'lucky Lindy' business! I work hard. Please don't refer to me as 'lucky'."

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, concluding his tour of New England today, told Vermonters it was nearly as cheap to operate a monoplane as an automobile. "The Spirit of St. Louis," he declared, "will fly ten miles on a gallon of gasoline, and has a carrying capacity of four passengers and a pilot."

"The average life of a motor," said Lindbergh, "is from 1,000 to 1,500 hours of flying time."

fred Dreyfus, central figure in one of the world's most famous criminal prosecutions in the early twenties, has accepted an invitation to be a member of a committee to go to America and plead the cause of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Dreyfus served four years in the French penal colony of Devil's Island, and only to be exonerated later on the charges of treason, for which he was convicted.

The committee being organized by the newspaper L'Ouvre is to be made up of eminent personalities: Jules Guesde, De Nollet, Georges Louis Malin, noted cabinet minister, and M. Campinchi, famous French advocate.

In 1924 Steneman testified as a government witness in the conspiracy trial of Coakley and William J. Conneron, former district attorney of Middlesex County. Both were acquitted.

ALBANY TO PAY HOMAGE TO LINDY

Albany, N. Y., July 27 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's air tour touched New York state today, and Albany was prepared to give the manly aviator the greatest ovation in her long history.

Scheduled to arrive at 2 p.m. from Springfield, Vt., Lindbergh was expected to be the central figure in a parade through the principal streets and a public meeting at Lincoln Park.

Scene in front of the Palace of Justice, which was set on fire during recent outbreak of Socialists in Austrian capital. In photo a fireman is seen playing hose in cellar of the flame-menaced palace. Near this building some of the fiercest fighting was staged. Many rioters were killed or wounded in the debris-littered street shown in picture.

HELEN WILLS TOO BUSY TO THINK OF MARRIAGE

America's Tennis Queen

Thrills North Shore Fans

At Essex County Club

(ESPECIALLY POSED FOR THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN)

"I'M LIKE EVERY OTHER GIRL"
Next to tennis and painting Helen Wills prefers dancing, swimming and traveling. The queen is playing at the Essex County Club this week.

"ENGAGED? NO, NO!"
Helen's eyes beamed as she said that she was too busy to think of love and marriage. She did say that no mass notes were received by her.

AT HOME ON THE COURTS
"I'll keep on playing tennis until I get tired and that probably, will be never," said Miss Wills. She believes more girls should take up tennis.

WILL GO ABROAD AGAIN
Another trip abroad is included in Helen's plans for next year. She will take a vacation in August.

HOPES TO MEET LINDY
Colonel Lindbergh "is simply marvellous," Helen says. "He is what everybody says he is," was the praise heaped on the ace by Helen.

EVA CARES FOR HIM!

Eva Tanguay, stage star, who recently married Alexander Brooke, her accompanist. She is 48 and he 30. It's Eva's second marriage.

HELEN WILLS IS KEEPING CLEAR OF CUPID

"I'm just like every other girl!" Calm of mind was the chorine Helen Wills seated in a wicker chair on the verandah of the Essex County Club overlooking the stretch of golf green which slides into the coyness of Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Tennis is her great passion, she declared, her soft blue eyes dilating. And next to her invincible court game, comes painting. But after that—

"Well, I'm just like every other girl," she smiled. "I like to dance and swim and enjoy myself and travel and see things."

And as for marriage and men and love—

"Marriage? Oh, dear no!" she laughed. "Engaged? No, no! A sweetheart? Uh, uh!" and her eyes beamed.

But no more on that score other than to say:

"I haven't any one in mind. No, really. I'm too busy. I have my tennis, and I'm going to keep on playing until I get tired and that probably will be never. I have another college year which I gradually will complete and then there's my drawing and I want another trip abroad. You see there are so many things."

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, America's ace of aces, was graciously spoken of by the tennis star.

"He is simply marvellous," she beamed, a slight shrug to her shoulders punctuating the sincerity of the remark. "So noble! So grand! So interesting! So brave! Oh, he is what everybody says he is. I have never met him, but I would certainly like to."

RUNAWAY AUTO MIXES 2 OTHERS UP IN WRECK

A heavy, empty sedan, owned by William H. Gallagher, real estate operator, ran wild down the steep hill on Somerset street today, hitting a police car, which in turn crashed into the new automobile of Bull Commissioner Joseph Fahy.

The Gallagher machine was completely wrecked, while Mr. Fahy's machine was badly damaged, the police car escaping almost unscathed.

Gallagher's car was left marked on the incline of Somerset street when in some manner the brakes were released and the car started down the hill toward Howard street.

Near Allston street the sedan crashed into the police car driven by Special Officer Jeremiah Sheehan of the liquor squad. The police car in turn was driven into the Fahy machine.

The empty sedan careened off the police car, knocked down an electric light pole and finally came to rest against a hydrant.

Bull Commissioner Fahy had just gotten into his car in front of the Tombs police when the police machine crashed into him. The Fahy machine was driven across Allston street to the sidewalk.

Special Officer Sheehan and Fahy were shaken up but did not require medical treatment.

MARINES KILL 6 NIGARAGUAN REBELS

Managua, Nicaragua, July 27 (N.E.A.)—Six Nicaraguan revolutionaries were killed and between 10 and 15 wounded in an attack upon a detachment of about 10 United States Marines near San Fernando, between Occotal and the Honduran frontier, according to a message received here today.

The United States forces were unopposed. One Marine was wounded, but the seriousness of his injury is not known.

The Marines, supported by a detachment of native constabulary, were in pursuit of General Sandino through the mountains when the attack was launched. Although not numbered, the Americans routed the rebels and put them to flight.

The Marines were under command of Major Ford, who is in charge of the search for Sandino.

Major Ford has ordered the arrest of Chief Administrator Albino, Chief of Police Teles and other leaders.

Wouldn't Even Have to Blush; Rouge Would Do It for Them

(Chicago, July 27 (A.P.)—With the remark, "All you women need, anyway, is a little rouge," handles held up and rubbed Miss E. J. Barton of Asheville, N. C., and Miss Beach, and Mrs. Betty McFarland of Orlando, Fla., as they drove along the Jolly road toward Chicago, they reported to police today.

The pick up of the women saved their jewelry, valued at $1500, which they strapped in a handkerchief and tossed on the floor of the car when the handkerchief failed to stop. The robbers took $200 in money from their car.

Clark Zimka, of the Governor's office in Knoxville, according to the report received here.

There were also the principal Liberal authorities in the Nueva Republica Department and it is reported that they are charged with having had communication with General Sandino.

General Menéndez, Liberal leader, who entered into the present peace with the Diaz government, has called a conference here of heads of his faction.

SUBWAY BOMB IMPERILS N. Y. PASSENGERS

New York, July 27 (N.E.A.)—The bomb equal, and several of the detectives were searching today for the person who attempted to blow up the Clark street tunnel of the Interborough Seventh Avenue subway line under the East river by placing an eighteen-inch bomb on the tracks.

Finding of the infernal machine followed a chase between subway of police and workers who had threatened to strike today, but finally agreed to a postponement.

Examination of the bomb showed that at least one train had ridden over its percussion cap, and that a defect in the cap saved hundreds of passengers from being blown to atoms or destroyed in the debris that would follow the destruction of the tunnel.

Identification of the container as a piece of the threatened pipe used by the Interborough brought investigators hurriedly to police headquarters early today.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Miss Lilla Cabot Grew Becomes Mrs. Jay Pierpont Moffat at Noon Wedding Today

FOR MISS LILLA CABOT GREW and Jay Pierpont Moffat there was a wedding ceremony today and a country wedding, sans pomp and sans magnificence, celebrated at the summer home in New Hampshire of the Joseph Clark Grew, august parents of the bride. The hour of the ceremony is high noon, and only the family connection has been bidden to Hancock in honor of the occasion.

FOR THE GIRLISH BRIDE there has scarcely turned "the withering seventeen" a bridal frock exactly suited to her years is fashioned of tulle and organdie. The organza is mounted over tulle and has a rare and exquisite collar of old lace. A piece of the same helicon lace bands the head, and following out the note of extreme girlish simplicity the bride dispenses with the usual veil. Her attendants are her two sisters, Miss Anita and Miss Eliza Grew, and they fit perfectly into the summery picture. In their pink organdie frocks tied with pink ribbons, and their white pink and transparent hats.

THE GREW-MOFFAT MARRIAGE unites a rising young diplomat with the daughter of a man already high in the same brilliant field. Because Mr. Grew has recently received appointment as American Ambassador to Turkey and leaves for New York very shortly, the marriage date was put forward considerably, and follows closely on the engagement announcement itself. In fact, the bride wears wedding finery even before she makes her bow to society, and in his case it would have been most important debut, of interest to the Upper Circle of several cities. Mr. Moffat, son of his bride's father, is a Canadian where he is Second Secretary of Legation in one of Uncle Sam's very newest diplomatic outposts.

TWO ATTRACTIVE YOUNG VISITORS at MANCHESTER FOR the tennis are Miss Louise Iselin and Miss Eleanor Colket. Both are brilliant players and both are of the golden-haired type of beauty, while at the same time decidedly in contrast. Miss Iselin's boyish crop of flying locks she binds with a wide ribbon while Miss Colket is a picture of maidenly grace and bound assets. Miss Iselin's blonde hair is parted and bound assets. Miss Iselin's blonde hair is parted and bound assets.

MISS COLKET IS A RELATIVE OF THE GEORGE COLKET CANERS of Boston and Manchester, and is their house guest during the tennis tournament now so brilliantly taking its course at the Essex County grounds. Miss Iselin is house guest of the Bernard Weiss. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weiss, of New York and New Rochelle. Mr. and Mrs. Weiss have a house party of the younger set at their Beverly Farms place, including the sister and the daughter of the house, Mrs. Robert Weiss Emmens, 24 (Frances Weiss).

MRS. ROBERT HERRICK, JR., MADE A BRIEF APPEARANCE at the matches, looking extremely smart in a small black hat with a touch of black and white print silk. Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, playing against Miss Patricia Rhodes on a court like emerald velvet, wore one of the sun visors forevermore associated with the Williams. Miss Rhodes bound her short locks with a wide one ribbon. Miss Rhodes, in white from head to heel, was in the gallery that closely followed this particular match.

ASIDE FROM THE TENNIS ROUND THERE'S THE SOCIAL about that renders the Essex County Tournament so vastly important and enjoyable. Mrs. Philip Dexter's large luncheon yesterday for the entire tennis group, Mrs. Henry J. Allan's similar affair today and the Russell Burdette's lunch this evening, keep the visitors and the home talent on the move. Altogether, visitors and home talent, there's nearly a half hundred people in the list when one says "the tennis group."

SEES PEACEMAT IT JUST AIN'T NAVAL PARLEY SPEED TRAP

London, July 27 (N.E.A.)—Great Britain has no desire to destroy the equality of seaborne commerce between Britain and the United States, committed in the Washington agreement, Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister in the House of Commons today.

Sir Austen said he had arisen to make the statement in order "to remove any misunderstanding which if they continue can not but impede the prospects of success of the Geneva conference."

"WITH BEST WISHES," Great Britain wishes the renewed conversations in Geneva all success, Sir Austen said.

"In the opinion of the government there need be no difficulty arising from a temporary arrangement about the immediate future of cruiser building, but the British Empire can be asked to give any such terms of an immediate principle which might be treated as a precedent."

"Despite all the efforts of the British delegates in Geneva, serious misapprehensions as to the aims of the British Government still prevail in some quarters."

"GRINDING SUSPICION," Great Britain has been charged with the desire to destroy equality of seaborne as between the United States and the British Empire, which the Washington conference contemplated. There is no foundation for such a suspicion.

The invitation of President Coolidge to the government conference was understood by the British Government to be based on the desire to diminish labor and expenditure while maintaining national security.

"With this His Majesty's Government is in complete agreement."

PRIESTS TO STAY AWAY FROM BEACH RESORTS

Milan, Italy, July 27 (A.P.)—The Catholic clergy of Lombardy will be instructed not to frequent the beaches or public spectacles without permission.

A collective pastoral letter to this effect has been decided on by the bishops of Lombardy. The letter will exhort the faithful to dress modestly at summer resorts and beaches, particularly attacking the scantiness and transparency of women's street clothing as "worse than bathing suits."

BISHOP HICKEY SAYS CHARGES ARE FALSE

Providence, July 27 (A.P.)—Bishop William A. Hickey of the Providence diocese of the Roman Catholic church, in a statement today declared that he never had disclaimed faith against French-American Catholics.

He denied numerous charges which are the basis of civil suits brought by Ephraim J. Delaunay, Woonsocket lawyer, against his administration.

His statement came as a sequel to a mass meeting of French-speaking Catholics at Providence last May, when Delaunay urged his hearers to refuse to make donations to church charities, in the event Delaunay seeks to force the bishop and other heads of the diocese to give an accounting of funds collected from twelve French-American parishes and used in constructing Catholic high schools.

"CHARGES FALSE"

Council for the church have replied that the civil suits have jurisdiction over affairs of the church and that the State charter of the diocese gives the bishop absolute control. They have asked that the diocese funds be relieved from further litigation and charges be dropped.

"IT IS FALSE"

"It is false," said Bishop Hickey, "that I have ever taken money from French churches in an illegal way. I have always complied with the regulations of the Council of Baltimore in building high schools."

"I HAVE NEVER ADVISED THE FRENCH CATHOLICS OF MY DIocese TO GIVE UP THEIR LANGUAGE."

On the contrary I have always advised the French Catholics to remain true to their language and to the traditions of their race."

$250,000 FOR CHARITY

"There are only $250,000 French Catholics in this diocese, 60,000 Italian, 2,000 Polish, 20,000 Portuguese and in all more than 150,000 English-speaking Catholics."

"I HAVE RECEIVED FOR CHARITY THIS YEAR $250,000."

He said that the French-American helped the St. Francis Orphanage as well as St. Vincent de Paul, both French institutions of Woonsocket, with many thousands of dollars and will help more."

"THE FRENCH CATHOLICS ARE RECEIVED IN THE CATHOLIC INSTITUTIONS OF THIS STATE AND IT IS FALSE TO SAY PREFERENCE IS MADE."

ASK GOVERNORS TO ORGANIZE TO FIGHT U. S.

Macine Island, Mich., July 27 (A.P.)—A proposal that the governors of the forty-eight States organize a permanent, collective body to combat the increasing grasp of the Federal government in the affairs of the ordinary citizen, advanced today by Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland at the nineteenth annual conference of State executives drew to a close here.

"We talk and talk of State rights but what do we do to preserve them?" asked the Maryland governor.

"We do very little. We might as well admit it. Continuation of power in the hands of the few in Washington is one of the greatest dangers before the American people today, and it is one that must sooner or later be met."

"WHY CAN'T WE MEET THIS SITUATION BY ORGANIZING OURSELVES INTO A REAL HOUSE OF GOVERNORS, A LEAGUE OF STATES, WHICH COULD BECOME IN EFFECT A THIRD HOUSE IN THE REPUBLIC."

Such an organization, to be sure, could act only in a voluntary co-operative manner, yet it organized properly it would be in a position to deal with many problems now seized upon by the Federal government simply because no other agency of government appears ready to deal with them."

Nearly every address delivered by the state executives here has contained some indictment of the Federal government for its increasing grasp of power.

Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, delivered the most vitriolic speech of the gathering, denouncing the Federal government, primary.

Pinchot denounced the Mellon interests and he called upon the governors to support the ousting of Senator W. B. Vane from the Senate. Vane defeated Pinchot in the primaries.

The conference of Governors in 1925 probably will be held in Massachusetts.

Duchess Is American Again So She Can Get Divorce

New Haven, Ct., July 27 (A.P.)—The Duchess Tefelova, who was born Elsie Moore of Greenwich, Ct., today resumed her Italian citizenship which came through her marriage to Duke Marino Tefelova, and was granted United States citizenship by Federal Judge Thomas.

The Duchess has had a suit pending in Superior Court at Bridgeport for a divorce since last year and further hearings await settlement of confused international legal questions.

Miss Moore married the Duke on August 15, 1907, at a ceremony which drew to the home of her mother many exclusive social leaders and filled persons from abroad. There were four children, the three living being with their mother.

A few weeks ago the Duke claimed his wife was not an American citizen and could not sue him in an American court.

FUEL OIL SETS FIRE ON LINER

A fire believed to have been caused by the backfiring of a valve broke out on the United Fruit liner San Blas tied up at Long Wharf today, causing much excitement on the waterfront.

The liner was taking in fuel oil from a lighter when the valve backfired, igniting oil that had spilled on the pier deck. The blaze was covered by Daniel Dineen, wharf manager, who turned in an alarm from an A. D. S. box.

Firemen were given a stubborn fight for nearly an hour, when they extinguished the flames with comparatively slight damage. The wharf was not burned.

Measures to the best extent to improve fire fighting for the harbor authorities are being considered.

CAISSON OF BIG HUDSON BRIDGE SLIPS; 20 IN PERIL

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 27 (A.P.)—Endangering the lives of twenty workmen, the East Caisson of the mid-Hudson vehicular bridge under construction here, slipped from its bed early today, causing a loss estimated at $250,000.

CANCEL BLIMP'S FLIGHT TO HUB

Lakehurst, N. J., July 27 (A.P.)—The rigid, semi-rigid and largest army airship, was fueled today in preparation for a flight which Lieutenant Colonel John E. Parlow, commander, said would take the vessel over Long Island.

Reports of unfavorable weather conditions along the New England coast caused Colonel Parlow to call off a proposed flight to Boston.

MARILYN FILES DIVORCE SUIT

Paris, July 27 (A.P.)—Marilyn Miller, American musical comedy star, has filed a petition for divorce from her husband, Jack Pickford, American film star, in a court in southern France, according to a statement made today by Miss Miller's lawyer.

Two formal attempts at reconciliation have been made by the court and have failed. Miss Miller expects to be granted a decree about October 15.

Formalities resulting from the divorce of Miss Miller and her husband in France have been ended and Pickford sailed for New York today on the Atlantic. Miss Miller, who has been in Antwerp, expects to reach New York about September 1.

6 Dixie Battle Flags Returned by Maine

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 25 (AP).—Symbolic of the "New Brotherhood of American Commonwealths," once torn by civil war, was the gesture by which Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine returned to the Southland six tattered battle flags once carried by the troops of six Confederate States of America.

Maine's trophy cabinets were stripped bare of such relics as that Governor Brewster, on his last visit as chairman of the nineteenth annual governors' conference, might make the presentation at the annual banquet. Into the hands of Governor

John Richards of South Carolina he handed the battle silk remnants, symbols of the "great good feeling and cooperation growing amongst States."

Twenty-two governors, representing four other States and 700 banquet guests were present and eyes filled with tears when a squad of marines bore in the Stars and Bars of Dixie's lost cause.

There was the battle emblem of the 21st South Carolina volunteers, captured by the Maine Infantry at Morris Island, S. C.; the flag of the 3rd Virginia captured by the 92d Maine at Spotylvania, Va., and four other flags. The four other emblems were taken by the 10th Maine volunteers at the capture of Fort Henshaw, Texas, by the 1st Maine at Adair, Va., by the 5th Maine at Roanoke Station, Va., and another taken by the 14th Maine in Texas.

Short informal discussions, also discussions of officers and the selection of next year's meeting place will end the convention today.

SUPPORT PLEA FOR MERCHANT MARINE

Stirred by the patriotic address of Governor Brewster of Maine before the Conference of Governors at Mackinac Island, Mich., in which he pleaded for the development of the American merchant marine, several have come to the front in praise of the Maine executive's plea and in support of "American Ships for American Progress."

Here's what they have to say of the upbuilding of the American merchant marine:

JOHN J. HOFFERMAN, acting Mayor and president of the City Council—If Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, sailing the seas in a single aircraft, kindled a new feeling of friendship between France and America, at a very crucial time in our diplomatic history, surely a fleet of American ships, flying the American flag and visiting all nations of the world would likewise prove to be ambassadors of good faith from the United States.

FORSTER MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY—The time for action is now. The importance of our American owned Merchant Marine was ended during the period following the declaration of the World War in Europe. In 1914 America depended upon foreign commerce carriers to handle 92 per cent of its goods produced or raised in America. The withdrawal of foreign carriers produced an industrial depression for a period of three months.

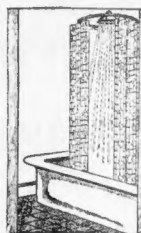

Without industrial prosperity there can be no happy or peaceful homes. Without industry it is difficult to stay the progress of Bolshevism or Internationalism when it rears its head among unemployment and discontent. The only solution to the Merchant Marine question is that of government aid or subsidy, needed. The United States today produces 50 per cent of the automobiles in the world, 50 per cent of the basic metals, iron, lead and copper, 50 per cent of the cereals, corn, barley, oats and rice and 70 per cent of the cotton in the world. The foreign market must be promoted and developed at government expense.

SMITH SILVERMAN, assistant corporation counsel, it ought to be the rule rather than the exception to see the American flag upon the seas. When one sees the United States flag on the ocean he at once sends up a great hurrah, because it is so strange. We are way behind in merchant tonnage. Let us cut out politics and get down to business. Stop catering to the big steamship companies and let this country assume its rightful place in the sea with a merchant marine service second to none.

A Story of Sylvia Bryant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

Joyce Ackerman, society woman and wife of Vance Ackerman, a rich broker, appeals to a mutual friend, Alexander Ladd, a successful lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affection. Ladd proposes that Mrs. Ackerman engage Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, a beautiful and charming young girl, as her social secretary. Mrs. Ackerman agrees and Ladd summons Sylvia.

Sylvia finally consents and her father and mother are very much pleased.

CHAPTER III

SYLVIA had promised Alexander Ladd to call on Mrs. Ackerman that very evening, and tell her that she had decided to accept the job. Just before she went to the telephone Sylvia realized that, subconsciously, she had been highly excited about the change. Beyond a lettuce salad she had just picked at her dinner.

Mrs. Ackerman's voice, smooth and warm, came to her agreeably over the wire. She was delighted that Sylvia had decided to accept.

"Why can't you come up tonight and talk it over in detail?" she suggested. "Shall I send the car down for you—say around 8 o'clock?"

When Sylvia hung up the receiver her eyes were shining. "No subway for me tonight, folks!" she announced gayly. "Not even anything as common as a taxi. Mrs. Ackerman is sending her own car for me, with a chauffeur and everything!"

"Well, it's no more than you deserve," her mother declared with pride. "You were always way above the ordinary—even when you were a baby."

Sylvia laughed. "Family prejudice, darling!"

"Mother's right," her father said, quietly. "This new position is going to take you among people of wealth and culture, but I haven't any fears that you'll feel rude or out of place. You've got good blood in your veins and wherever you go it's bound to be recognized. That's why Mr. Ladd selected you out of all the girls in the office for this opportunity."

"Applesauce!" Sylvia commented briskly. "Mr. Ladd picked me because I was nearest at hand. I don't mean any more in his life than John Doe. I just happened to get a break—that's all."

She was, her father assured her, too modest.

"Oh now, Father—you know she's plenty self-willed, too," her mother protested. "She's as spunky as they make 'em if she's rubbed the wrong way."

Sylvia's hair swelled with tenderness for both of them. Like children, almost, they were. Of the world's evil they were only dimly aware. Both were past fifty but so smoothly time carried them along that neither realized fully that the old unsmiling tempo of life as they had known it in their youth had vanished, perhaps forever. Originally, they had come from a small town upstate. "Bliss their hearts," Sylvia murmured absently. "They still think bobbed hair is frisky!"

After supper Sylvia went to her bedroom and changed into a fresh little frock, a new thing that followed the small curves of her young body gracefully. She brushed her copper hair until it was vividly shiny a tinge of faint color alone in the skin of her cheeks. "I believe I'm going to get a kick out of this new job after all," she thought, her smile dimpling, eyes deepened from blue to violet with a mild excitement.

She was slightly enervated, void of all fatigue from the office. A buzzer announced someone at the door. "It's the chauffeur—he'll be right down," she called to her mother.

She was into her well-cut cloth coat she gave a final look to the small laundry bag.

Downstairs in the hall was no chauffeur. "Waiting for me?" she asked, her eyes on the door.

Prosperous a man, immaculately groomed, in dinner clothes with a white silk muffler under the collar of his black tuxedo.

"Miss Bryant?"

"O—yes?"

"I happened to be using the car tonight and my wife thought I might give you a lift up to the house—I'm taking the car out when she talked to you."

He smiled pleasantly and Sylvia's swift impression was that he was a trifle disheveled, although he had a broad, set-up look, and the skin of his middle-aged face was pinkish clear.

"Are you sure it's no trouble? I could get a taxi—"

He smiled in a friendly fashion. "Please turn to Page 15, Column 1."

MISSING 13 YEARS, HE DIES

Syracuse, N. Y., July 27 (I.N.S.).—That Henry E. Blake, was revealed today, a Boston drug-gist, deserted his wife and two children 13 years ago to come here and work as a farmhand, lunchroom proprietor and elevator operator, under the name of Henry E. Blake, was revealed today.

This son, William E. Blackinton of Boston, a traveling salesman, and the daughter, Mrs. Mary Blackinton Johnson of Great Falls, Mont., filed affidavits in the surrogate's office to prove relationship.

Blackinton with the estate of Henry E. Blake, a farmer for whom he worked for years in the event the son and daughter were not found.

When he drew his will he refused to let the attorney his connection with the beneficiaries or give clues to their whereabouts. Group of Syracuse attorneys went to Boston with photographs of Blackinton and found the son.

He could give no reason why his father left home, Mrs. Blackinton had remarried, believing her husband dead.

As a result of the finding of a letter, containing Ruby Ellen Fitzpatrick's photograph and a lock of her hair, the charges were brought to eight against "Raffles" and he was held in $10,000 for the August Grand Jury.

Nearby was in on charges of entering hotel rooms and deducting articles of value from bags, which he left open with a knife. A Chicago dealer and a broker were among his alleged victims in the five original charges.

But when "Raffles" told Fitzpatrick he had been working on the House of Correction in East Boston, he was released on a similar ticket from his room at the Hotel Hyattsville, located at 100 Spinnery of Hanover street called on Special Officers Linn and Dwyer, who had made the arrest, and his pocket, with little Ellen's picture and hair, was found.

This added another charge, and subsequent investigation as a result brought the other two.

While Mr. Herrick was suffering considerable pain, attending physicians said that he rested fairly comfortably. The operation was the second to which the Ambassador had submitted in ten days.

LEVINE PLANE REPAIRED FOR FLIGHT TO AMERICA

Paris, July 27 (I.N.S.).—Charles A. Levine, who flew from New York to Glasgow, Germany, with Clarence D. Chamberlin in the Balclutha Wright monoplane Columbia, said today the plane had been completely reconditioned and soon will be ready for a flight back to New York.

By Alexandre Dumas

The three musketeers had surrendered in their last quarrel with the guards; they determined to resist arrest. D'Artagnan joined them, and the battle was on. The young man, who had been supposed to Jussac, the best blade in the guards, but Jussac was over-confident, and d'Artagnan disposed of him after a sharp struggle.

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Find out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These 133 small not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

Not having received a voluntary response to the informative double which was overcalled by No Trump, West bids two Spades as a leading measure. North, still indicating that the Diamonds are solid and that there is a successful heart finesse in sight, bids two No Trumps, practically assured of eight tricks and hoping to pick up another for game.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. West believes that his partner has opened from a four-card spade suit or from three to the King. Had North held Ace, King, and three small, he would have doubled, as the Deuce lead cannot be a singleton.

Trick 2. West can see that he must make four diamonds on the Diamonds. It is too dangerous to discard any heart whatever and not two Clubs may be discarded so his first discard is a high Spade to warn his partner to keep all of that suit back.

Trick 3. At West, after making his Club, puts his partner in with Spades and game is saved. East covers the Queen since only one more card is needed, and his eight and six of Spades must make.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your bridge problems by writing to him on this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

Recovery of valuable historical relics of ancient Greecean days was sought today by the Republic of Greece in a bill in empty filled through its Boston Consul in Superior Court against Artistas Konouras and Paul Demas, believed to be the same person, and the Atlantic National Bank of Boston.

Some of the articles are believed to have been deposited in the Bank in the name of Paul Demas. He is asked to disclose their whereabouts and the court is asked to declare the property that of the Republic of Greece and that the loss of that country provide all salaries of historical nature in the sole property of the Republic.

An injunction was asked against the bank to prevent removal of the articles.

By FRANK H. MELLON

Financial Editor

President Teagle is a grandson of John D. Rockefeller. His partner in chemistry at Cornell, refused an offer to become a partner in the Standard Oil Co. and he has been in and out of the Standard Oil Co. since then. "Whenever you have a question to ask about Standard Oil come and see me," this is the invitation to the financial world.

Sir Henry Watling has recently been "tripping" America. He has declared himself as not at all alarmed by the Standard Oil Co. in China, where the Rockefeller interests are said to have a million kerosene lamps to sell at

Foods to Avoid When Mercury Is Climbing

By MARTHA LEE

JUST as in clothing we have heavy wools for the winter and light wools for summer, so also can we adjust the kind of food we eat to help make us warm or keep us cool.

Expert cooks advise "two ingredients in one"

HERE'S a little cooking secret that adds deliciousness and subtracts expense. Professional bakers, confectioners and old-time cooks all know—and now housewives are learning it. It's this: Whenever a recipe calls for both milk and sugar, use Condensed Milk (Standard Brand). It gives you the two ingredients in one—fresh, full-cream country milk and sweet sugar, blended with a richness and smoothness no other method can equal.

Ordinary bottled milk is 87% water. But Standard Brand Condensed Milk has had most of this water removed. Its percentage of butter fat is more than twice as high as that of bottled milk. This super-richness adds to your cooking!

Standard Brand Condensed Milk makes richer, smoother, creamier puddings, custards, Spanish creams, soups and fillings. It improves hot breads, too—giving them an evenness of texture and crispness of crust you've never known before. For candied fruit and other confections, it makes wonderful marmalades that never curdle or separate.

Watch this space for delightful recipes, and write to the Borden Company, 310 Madison Ave., New York, for "Condensed Milk and Its Uses in Good Cooking"—a complete recipe booklet.

And by the way—do you know that Standard Brand Condensed Milk will cream and sugar your coffee to rich golden deliciousness? Try it! You'll agree with the millions who find their breakfast coffee a new delight because of it.

Get Standard Brand at your grocer's today! Remember—it keeps without ice!

There are certain types of foods to avoid as we would shun a fur coat when the thermometer reaches 10 degrees. Fats are great heat producers. Rich soups and gravies, stews, fried foods, heavy cakes, straws, sweets and hot breads all help to over-heat the body.

Fresh vegetables and fruits, on the other hand, are not only refreshing and cooling, but furnish the body with the essential constituents for maintaining the optimum health.

Winter or Summer, Spring or Fall, drink milk—a quart a day for children and a pint daily for adults. Other beverages.

Food beverages, when drunk very rapidly, may cause discomfort by the sudden chilling of the stomach. It is best to sip them slowly, for that is the safest method and will bring the most lasting coolness.

In order to take care of the necessary part of our daily meals, some people increase their production of energy, however, it is best to eat as little as possible, as we are not used to it, therefore, should be given only once a day. Cheese or eggs as a main dish, may be used as a substitute for milk or food.

In order not to allow food to be lost in the digestive tract where bacteria are multiplying and cause of disease. It is a good rule to drink plenty of liquid, plenty of fruit or vegetables, and plenty of water. It is a good rule to drink plenty of liquid, plenty of fruit or vegetables, and plenty of water.

Operating at any time is inadvisable, but especially in the warm weather. The stomach is as sensitive as a thermometer. It is the body that, overloading it, over-heat it, and a person is easily kept in the red line.

Three meals a day with plenty of fresh vegetables, fruits and water, and with a minimum of meat or a substitute, should exercise special care in inspecting these as to freshness at all times. The standard growth is favored. Any signs of decay are danger signals, and the housekeeper, by sensitive marketing, may protect her family by age and quality.

Serviss Tells What Keeps the Sun Going

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE latest, and perhaps the best, of the new theories of astronomy concerning the life of the sun on which all kinds of life in the solar system depends--that of Jeans, who assumes that there is in the central part of the sun sea of other stars a quantity of "super-radioactive matter" which is continually transformed into energy, and it is this energy that keeps the sun alive.

This peculiar "radioactive" matter is supposed to consist of atoms of a heavier atom weight than uranium, which has the highest atomic weight of any matter known to us. We know that uranium and its derivatives, the relatives of the property of spontaneous disintegration.

It is perhaps most familiar known in connection with radium. This disintegration is in reality a more or less direct transformation of matter into energy.

It takes place at a fixed rate. In the case of radium, it is a certain amount of transformation of a given mass of the element of matter is transformed in 1,580 years. In the case of uranium, it is a certain amount of transformation of a given mass of the element of matter is transformed in 4,500 years.

Almost as soon as radium was discovered the theory was put forth that the continuance of the sun's outpouring of radiant energy, making light and heat, could be accounted for by assuming that it arose from the gradual transformation of radium in the sun. But then it was remembered that about half of all the radium must be lost by transformation every 1,580 years the amount of energy sent out by the sun would show a corresponding variation--which it does not do. No radium could be known the required purpose.

But the theory was so plausible and seductive that it could not be abandoned. So attention was drawn to the fact that in uranium the rate of the radioactive transformation is almost to make the rate around which they come and it was pointed out that if elements existed of a heavier atomic weight than that of uranium the rate of transformation would be so slow that the continuance of the sun's outpouring of radiant energy, making light and heat, could be accounted for by assuming that it arose from the gradual transformation of radium in the sun. But then it was remembered that about half of all the radium must be lost by transformation every 1,580 years the amount of energy sent out by the sun would show a corresponding variation--which it does not do. No radium could be known the required purpose.

The Young Working Girl

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

YOU may or may not belong to that fortunate class of young women who must do something for a living.

All young women who must do something for a living are classified as working girls. It follows, therefore, that the term "working girl" is not to be taken in the narrow meaning of a girl engaged in manual labor, but includes all girls in the labor market, shop assistants, clerks, etc.

Excellent results, we are informed by Murrell, have followed the efficient inspection and treatment of ailments in school children, and much remains to be done in the way of extending such measures to the office and shop. In fact, more attention is already given to them, but there is room for improvement.

Adolescents have not only to satisfy the requirements of the labor market, but to do so during a period of great strain. The following are some of the disabilities to which they are particularly liable:

There are certain errors of spinal curvature, due to prolonged standing and sitting posture and the carrying of heavy weights. A well-balanced body is a body that is well-balanced, and a body that is well-balanced is a body that is well-balanced.

Many girls, in addition to a full day's work outside, are required to help at home as well. It is most important that no girl should have to do more than one person's work. Considering how much greater is her contribution to the new generation than her brother's, she ought to be allowed at least as much rest and recreation.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Better pay for honest public service.
3—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
4—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.

3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

More Ships Needed

Our Flag is Making Profit on the Seas

The United States Lines, operating the Government-owned Leviathan and four sister passenger ships under the American flag, announces a profit of three hundred and seventy thousand dollars in the twelve months just past.

In other words, the flag is on the seas, making money, in the most important trade in the world, the North Atlantic passenger business.

It is the most important trade in the world because it is the only one that can support the swift, high-class passenger steamers which we must have as auxiliaries to our navy for defense purposes.

Furthermore, it would be a national disgrace not to have American steamships on this chief highway of the seas. Before the war we had no such steamships of the first-class. The fortunes of war gave us the Leviathan, the George Washington and three others, which carried 84,000 passengers last year, and made money for the Government.

It has been a hard pull. The United States Lines held on through four years of deficit. The largest share of the credit should go to Brigadier-General A. C. Dalton, head of the Merchant Fleet Corporation, which runs the Government's Shipping Board vessels.

General Dalton now asks Congress for two new first-class ships, which, with the Leviathan, could maintain a weekly passenger service fully equal to any competition. Congress ought to be proud to supply the money for the new vessels.

We have the largest export trade in the world, one-fifth larger than Great Britain's yearly foreign sales of four thousand million dollars. Yet seventy per cent. of our overseas trade is carried in foreign-day vessels. We are dropping further and further behind. Lloyd's Register tells us that on June 30 Great Britain and Ireland were building one million, four hundred thousand tons of shipping, Germany four hundred thousand tons, Italy two hundred and twenty thousand tons, Holland one hundred and seventy thousand tons. The United States, in fifth place, was building one hundred and forty-six thousand tons, approximately one-tenth of the British figure.

The whole country will approve the appropriation of money for the two new Leviathan-type ships General Dalton asks for.

The Best Airport

Isn't That What We Want?

About the only criticism Colonel Lindbergh made of the Boston Airport had to do with the location of its hangars. They are built on the "wrong side of the field."

But the Lone Eagle came to us in daylight. If he had dropped in at night he would have seen that our airport is without standard lighting devices, that automobile headlights are used, a primitive equipment.

When the Legislature meets again it is likely that the alert and public-spirited Mayor of Lynn will discover many new supporters of the plan to build a bridge between Boston proper and East Boston.

No traveler will care to save two hours by airplane and then lose half the gain in his journey from airport to city. Before any of these famous fliers come back to us the city of Boston should see that Maverick Square and the Airport are connected by means of the finest stretch of roadway within the city limits.

The Airport should be made attractive enough to draw visitors. It might well be made one of our popular resorts, with plenty of parking space, a restaurant, music and so on. Make no mistake about it, Boston and New England will be the losers if we fail to realize the new importance of aeronautics.

Try to picture what transportation was like eighty-five or ninety years ago. The stage coach and the canal boat were the things; the railroad was coming. Where would all these industries have been if the forward-looking men of that day had failed to appreciate the railroad train, had neglected to take up and go into railroading?

Save TIME, Mr. Shipper, use the air line and get your goods to customers in the Middle West and the Far West one day ahead of present schedules.

Make use of the air mail, everybody!
Enlist in the cause of the airport, STAY with it until it has been made in every respect the BEST airport in the U. S. A.!

Police Who Dodge a Vexing Issue

Police of the Rockaways, N. Y., have decided that women shall be allowed to wear one-piece bathing suits this Summer if they like and that they may also go in bathing without stockings.

Stockings with a modern one-piece bathing suit do look a little unnecessary if not slightly bizarre. But the nut of the argument is that the police of the Rockaways are men of agile minds who know how to save themselves a lot of mental anguish.

Telling a lady what she will wear or what well-dressed flappers will adopt is a task far beyond the average police mind. Lucky is the officer who can dodge the entire question. If the ladies want to wear one-piece suits they will wear them. Hence it is just as well to agree with them beforehand.

The police in this instance show excellent judgment.

Lawful

Yet Solo Drinking May Be Unwise

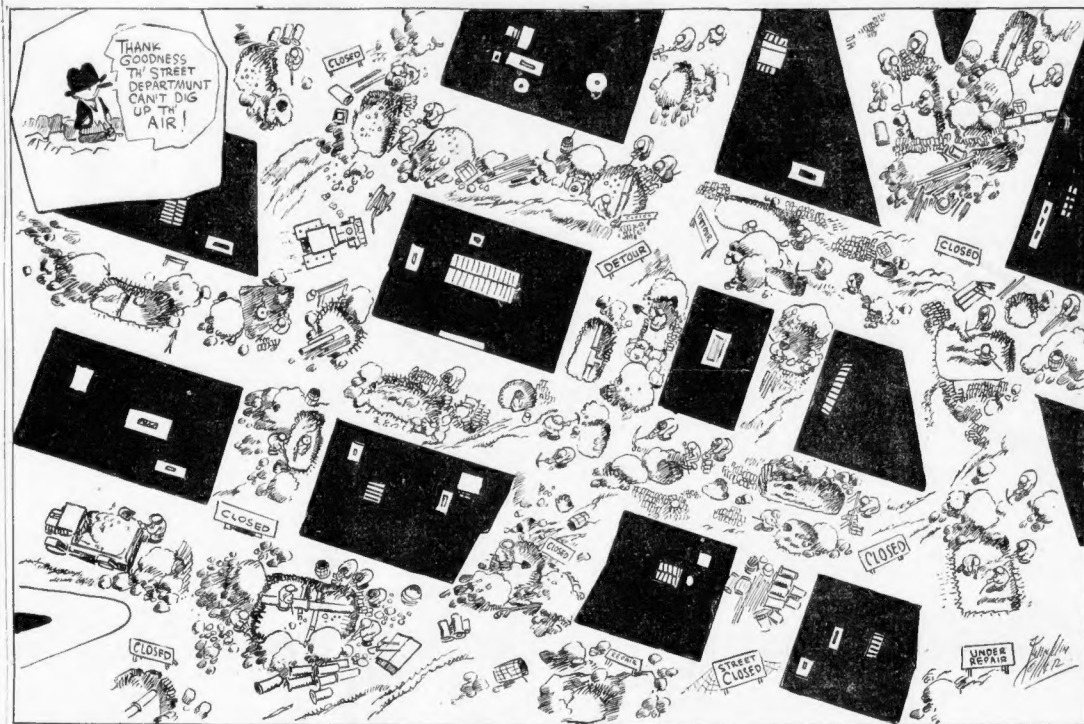

The United States Court of Appeals has decided that it is not moral turpitude to manufacture liquor in your own home to drink in your own home.

The case was that of the Nebraska lawyer, Frank W. Barthol, against whom disbarment proceedings had been started because he owned a private stock of liquor.

That decision settles one disputed issue. A man's home is still his castle, even though his castle is little more than a still.

And They Wondered How Lindy Knew It Was Boston

By Franklin Collier

WHONOMINATED AND ELECTED LINDY?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A SHORT time past Mr. Lindbergh, a young Swede from America, occupied the spotlight.

How did he get there?

Who nominated him and elected him? Kings and Prime Ministers and everybody tumbled over themselves to do him reverence. He was brought back to America on a United States vessel and was received by President Coolidge.

Newspapers made a front-page issue of him and he had all sorts of offers from moving picture concerns and other people involving orders of money.

How did he get in this position? The Republican party was not behind him, neither was the Democratic party. No, not even the Prohibitionists or the Socialists. He isn't the son of a king nor the descendant of a pretender. He occupied his place without the old-time method of being somebody's son or the novel method of being voted in.

All of us people who are suffering from the inferiority complex would like to know about this. Every one of us would like to be "Lindy" and have our hands shaken by kings and queens and jacks and ten spots.

Nothing doing! We are still compelled to rise in the morning when the alarm goes off and are so blamed tired at night we don't care to play a game of pinocle with the neighbors, but go right to bed. It is a conspiracy to keep the laboring classes down. It is another attempt to oppress the proletariat. As far as we can see, Mr. Lindbergh has this undue prominence simply because he did something, which is all wrong. Men run for mayor and president over here because they are good hand shakers and good baby kissers and spellbinding orators, not because they can attend properly to the duties of their office. This is democracy.

This idea that a man can have the spotlight simply because he does something is revolutionary and threatens our most cherished institutions. Of what value is pull and influence and popularity and all that sort of thing if some hero is going to come in and walk away with the prize simply because he makes good?

Let all free men arise and do something or other. A bomb should be thrown at a meeting held or some measure should be taken to redeem our party system or our hereditary nobility from the asparagus that has been thrown at them. Down with Lindbergh! Up with Limburg!

What did Lindbergh do anyhow except a little matter of flying 3,600 miles in about thirty-three hours?

He has not voted the straight ticket all his life and maybe his uncle burned a hayrick or something scandalous has taken place in his family.

Just you wait and see!

For the benefit of the morons, I will postscript that the above is sarcasm. My yell for Lindbergh is loud.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

Some day go down on the wharves where dock the ships from Italy, Spain and France. The longshoremen may accidentally swing a cash of olive oil down with a jerk, crushing some of the staves. Just a little crack appears and a little trickle of good olive oil appears on the wharf.

Soon along comes a swarthy proprietor of a small waterfront restaurant. He uses a sponge and a small can—why waste good olive oil even if it is on the dock floor? This does not happen often, for watchmen know that often cases are broken so that a few cans and bottles can be stolen ashore.

Some of these greasy, one-man hot dog and tonic places down along Atlantic avenue may be managed $15 to $100 a week.

As we go down the harbor on yachts, pakistal liners, or maybe over on the East Boston ferry, we often see those characteristic scum-bearing coal, mud, oil and lumber. A little two-room house holds down the rear end. In this house lives the crew, the captain and the cook, who is his wife. All the income of about $120 per month is paid into the family treasury. For food, the crew makes friends with the stewards of the steamers and tugs the company operates.

One oil company buys the masters of its oil barges still a month, with food and good quarters. From two to fifteen men make up the crew and some of the larger large tankers carry a radio operator with complete radio equipment. When such a tanker is towed to Portland, Beverly or Chelsea, the skipper may frugally carry home ten gallons of company paint and turpentine.

I have seen fragile, flowery men who displayed all the well known characteristics of a chilled steel sugar bit.

There is no "original type" or "respectable type."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU can't generalize. You can't say that "women are like this" or "men are like that."

Or lump all Americans under one classification and all "foreigners" under another—

Or judge another fellow's reaction by your own.

You can't say—"If I were in his shoes, I'd do this or that."

You don't know what you'd do if you were in his shoes. For you are you, and he is he. And the rule that holds for you doesn't hold for any other human being on God's green earth.

The art that would merely reflect good breeding on your part might express the same of courage or self-sacrifice in another life. Cautionness that would be reprehensible in you might be admirable in another.

And so it goes, all down the line of human behavior.

There's no such thing as "feminine nature" or "masculine nature."

Men are part women—And women are part men—And the ratio of masculine to feminine is never the same in any two natures.
